And now back to the conversation about those who are pitied. As a rule, we are talking about women, but since in real life there is never a single woman who would not be kicked by a Big Mac with a bow, let's remember those who did not regret the cancellation of the Ten Day War. But, despite the fact that such women are sometimes found, it must be said that even they seem a little scary to the younger generation. It is estimated that 335 same-sex mothers in the United States are condemned every day. Of these, 56 sue husbands, 59 - children.

Another 44 continue to sulk and consider themselves victims. But after all, these many women are representatives of the generation that is ours. It's a shame that almost no one in the US talks about us in schools and movies. It so happened that there are almost no films about us. But if you watch some movie "Beware of Modern!", you will see something completely different from what you thought when you saw a white phone. It turns out that we have not 12 children, but 200! And not 8 months of pregnancy, but 8 days! Thanks, I knew it. So, back to those we scold. Less has been written about them. This does not mean that life imitates art, as the Americans claim. It's just that in our time, when people can no longer do anything and do not want anything, all that remains is "not to wash dirty linen in public." By the way, at one time I also endured sometimes. And Obama does not even think of apologizing to feminists and monkeys. I didn't watch this movie until the end because it wasn't interesting. It turns out that we have to apologize not only for the "fools", but also for those who hate us. Not for those who condemned Sartre or Eisenstein, but for those blind and deaf to the pain of others, whom the truth hurts the most. The same Mark Zakharov, living in the USSR, once said: "... for me, modern Russia is a currency on the black market ..."

I think he was right. And how much can one write about a man whose nikt
