Based on the cult hit game "Trail of the Dead" (Trail 'n' Disease in the United States), Organ Trail: Director's Cut is a zombie hunting simulator set on an island of the dead. You control a group of survivors, all equipped with shovels, trying to find an escape route from the island. An immediate and visceral experience in which you will have to survive by gathering food, building shelter, and protecting yourself from the hordes of zombies that roam the island. Although the game is primarily focused on survival, strategy is also an integral part of the gameplay. Gathering food in the early stages of the game is a great way to become stronger, however you must consider where to find the greatest amount of food efficiently, as well as when and where to ration your supplies. You will need to consume food to stay healthy, and your body will inevitably get worn out. As a result you will progressively lose strength, making it more and more difficult to fend off zombies and complete the tasks of the game. You will also be able to use strategic enemy weaknesses. To give the game a unique identity, the game has many different enemies including infected, skeletons, and other various zombies. Your goal is to constantly be aware of enemy weaknesses in order to survive and complete the game. Each mission will have a time limit, giving you only a certain amount of time to gather your supplies and complete tasks. So make sure you choose your task wisely. The game will evolve and get bigger in scope as it goes on. As you progress you'll explore the island, solve puzzles and explore new parts of the island. Different AI Behavior at every game: "Generally your Men will be up against Bots that will be more or less passive at every game. Bots will be more or less active and they will be more or less aggressive." Tutorial Level: The tutorial can be played once and is in the beginning (not playable in the first skirmish). No single player tutorials, but you can always use the help & tutorials in the settings menu. Tutorial-Menu: Menu 1, System Settings (The Tutorial) Menu 2, single Player Tutorial (You can only start the Tutorial during one skirmish) Menu 3, Main Game Settings Menu 4, Multiplayer Settings Menu 5, Skirmish Menu 6, Tutorial Settings Menu 7, Options Not working well - can't buy equipment & soldiers for my army. Ok, so I can't buy anything because the '+' button is disabled. I can buy weapons and items by pressing 'X'. But no way to buy new units. I thought maybe I hadn't bought enough in the bank so I checked the bank. I've got plenty. So why is my '+' button disabled? And why can't I buy troops and equipment with the '+' button? From what I could see and looking through posts in this thread, I had to change the following: 1. Set the turn timer to one turn instead of "Auto" 2. Turn the sensitivity down to about the bottom third of the menu. Turn the "Deploy infantry first" to "Always" That's how I fixed it. I am currently running version 0.34 and I've played about a dozen games with no issues at all. There is a way to remove any previously created AI's, but it requires a lot of work. You have to remove the built in enemies in the game (in main game options, General, Enemies). It is probably easier to start with a new game. Another way is to use a variation on the How to Play AI. That tutorial shows you how to set the AI up. I made a new player and gave him a new mission. This will take him to the 2nd mission. After the 2nd mission, I deleted the mission so he could not return. This left me with a 2nd player enemy (Zombie). After the 2nd game, I placed the Zombie at the beginning of the board. I deleted the opponent (if you wish to keep them after a game). I space complete and separable? My question refers to the following theorem from Kellogg Book. I've asked this question in superuser but they didn't reply.... Let  $X$  be a set and let  $d$  be a function on  $X \times X$  so that  $d((x,y),(x',y')) \leq M \sqrt{\frac{d(x,x') + d(y,y')}{2}}$  for every  $(x,y),(x',y') \in X \times X$ . Let  $M' = \inf_{(x,y) \in X \times X} d((x,y),(x,y))$ . Then  $d$  is a metric on  $X \times X$  if and only if  $d$  satisfies the reverse triangle inequality and  $X \times X$  is complete and separable. I want to see if this theorem is true and what is the purpose of the title: is every metric space complete and separable? and if yes, can anyone give me a reference of this? and if not, please point out the counter example so that I can gain useful knowledge. A: Take any metric  $d$  on  $X$ . Then if  $d$  satisfies the reverse triangle inequality and  $X$  is complete, then you have  $M' = \inf_{(x,y) \in X \times X} d(x,y) \leq \frac{d(x,y)}{2}$ a long tutorial. Rather this is a game for you to relax with your pen. You will find yourself in a nice place where you can see characters celebrating and indulging you while you're drawing with your pen. In this game, you have to draw with your pen and catch the characters dancing and eating moon-cakes. You will then have to draw more characters from the rest of the area and move on to the next level. You have to find all the characters on the map and collect all the score points to unlock all the level. The doodles for each level are incrementally hard. Also, you have to turn the aesthetic of the game to change the background and other parts. The game is beautiful in both modes - quiet and music. Many of you have asked for it and now it is almost here.
