A: Go to the source of the file (and replace the exe file with a newer rar version (Open the newer.rar and drag the files from the rar to your system, it will extract them on your system as a new.exe file. This should do the trick! A victory by the Squamish First Nation, which gave the Canadian government just 12 days to recover spending already approved, could have a major impact on the future of forest industry in the province. The federal government is already asking each province and territory to recover over $30 billion in outstanding expenditures from the Liberals' 2006 election campaign. The Squamish Nation faces a bill of $3.3 million, but a government source says the federal government may end up working out a deal with its northern neighbour. "This is a major negotiation," said a source, adding the provincial government also needs money for infrastructure projects. Story continues below advertisement Squamish is looking for damages for the loss of income on resort property taken by the government. The government has acknowledged it took a 12-hectare park, but it has refused to pay for damages associated with the bulldozing of 79 homes. "It's an agreement that will have a huge economic impact on Vancouver, including the Lower Mainland," said the source. The Squamish Nation is based in British Columbia, but its people live in several provinces. The First Nation is also part of the Songhees Treaty 8 territory, which includes a broad territory across B.C. The First Nation said in a statement the provincial government has already agreed to pay a $55-million settlement for forestry proceeds, despite its claim it never received the money. The Squ
