Q: Get single bar, not a range of bars I have a webpage that allows users to enter trades for a given timeframe. There are all sorts of possible filters for this timeframe and all sorts of other possible factors, so I decided to use d3.time.js for the timerange. The timerange will show bars at every second, but I want only the current bar to be displayed. Right now I can only display the bars as a range, but I can't figure out how to filter it down to a single bar (if there is a single one) only. D3 is javascript so I have that possibility to work with, but I'm really not sure how to proceed. My understanding is that to have a single bar, I would need to run a timerange range with only one bar for every minute, but how would I filter it down to a single bar if there is one? Here's the code for displaying everything: time = d3.time.format("%Y-%m-%dT%H:%M:%S"); page_title = "Trades for " +
d3.time.format("%Y-%m-%dT%H:%M:%S", date.getUTCMonth(), date.getUTCDate(), date.getUTCHour(), date.getUTCMinutes()); page_description = d3.time.format("%Y-%m-%dT%H:%M:%S", date.getUTCMonth(), date.getUTCDate(), date.getUTCHour(), date.getUTCMinutes()); d3.select("body").append("h1") .attr("class", "page_title") .text(page_title) d3.select("body").append("h2") .attr("class", "page_description")
.text(page_description) d3.select("svg") .attr("width", "800px") .attr("height", "300px")
.append("g")
